

MOBILE SOCIETIES are normally the result of the NATURAL evolution of man's social and economic environment. Such societies allow full expression of man's 'rational choice' or the freedom to make the most of any situation and opportunity. Thereby fulfilling his basic instinct or motivation to move up.

It is a society in tune with the make up of man and is therefore innately healthy.

Because of peoples' unequal abilities, some push themselves up faster than others, while some fail and fall down the ladder.

In these 'free enterprise' societies competition flourishes.

This allows individuals, companies and industries to pit their wits, ideas, inventions and industriousness against their competitors.

In a mobile environment the excitement, hopes and fears make for a rich and exciting life and those partaking in such a society would score high marks on life's scale of 'true' value.

THE MOBILE ENVIRONMENT :
IS IN TUNE WITH MAN'S BASIC ANIMAL MAKE UP !
